SUPPLEMENT TO VOLS. I. AND II.

INTRODUCTION TO SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME.

General Objects of Volume.

In the introduction to the First Volume of the Annual Statement of Trade of the United Kingdom for 1908 it was explained that throughout the Tables in that volume (as also in Volume II.) imports were generally classified as received from the countries whence they were shipped direct to the United Kingdom, but that exports were credited to the country of ultimate destination, except where the country possessed no seaboard, when they were credited to the country in which the port of discharge was situated.

Particulars have been specially collected since the commencement of 1904, however, with regard to the countries from which all imported goods were actually consigned, and the countries of destination of all exported goods, and the main object of the present supplementary volume to the Annual Statement of Trade for 1908 is the comparison of the results of the two methods of classifying imports.

The difference in the methods of classification, as was pointed out in the introduction to the earlier supplementary volumes, chiefly affects the imports, the inclusion of a few countries and colonies which have no seaboard amongst those for which export returns are given only affecting those countries and colonies and the few countries through which the exports destined thereto passed in transit and to which they were originally credited in the Accounts. It has, accordingly, been considered unnecessary to include in this volume a detailed table relating to the exports of each article to each destination. In order, however, that the principal information collected should not be entirely lost, the export sections of the Table in this Volume which deal with the trade with particular countries (Table No. 10) have been expanded so as to show, in respect of the comparatively few countries affected by the inclusion of Switzerland, Afghanistan, Bolivia, and the South African inland colonies among the countries of destination of exports, full details with regard to the consignments of articles to those countries.

The present volume, like its four predecessors, contains an analysis of the imported Merchandise consigned from each Foreign Country and British Possession, distinguishing between the portion which was retained in the United Kingdom and the portion which was re-exported to other destinations. In other words an account is given of the imports consigned from each country for consumption in the United Kingdom, i.e., of what is often called the "special imports" from each country into the United Kingdom.

The various articles of merchandise have been arranged in Tables 6 and 7 under the same headings and in the same order as in the corresponding Tables in Volume I. of the Annual Statement of Trade, and the arrangement of countries in Table No. 10 is the same as in Volume II. of that publication. For a statement of the principles underlying the arrangement in both cases, reference should be made to the Introductions to those Volumes.

The countries from which goods are consigned are not in all cases the countries of actual origin of the goods, since goods produced in one country may have been purchased by a firm in another country from which the goods were despatched to the United Kingdom. In this case the second country would be that from which the goods were consigned and to which they would be credited in this Volume. In the absence of a general requirement by this country of certificates of origin for imported goods, it is not possible to trace such goods back further than to the country from which they were originally consigned to the United Kingdom. In the same way this volume takes no account of any subsequent sale, to purchasers in a third country, of goods consigned from the United Kingdom to a particular Foreign Country or British Possession.

Arrangement of the Tables.

The first four Tables give a summary of the results of the system of classifying imports and exports according to the countries from and to which they were consigned as compared with the system previously adopted. Table 1 deals with the trade as a whole in the year 1908, and includes comparative figures for 1907. Tables 2 to 4 give, for 1908 only, the figures relating to the principal categories of merchandise, distinguishing the trade between the United Kingdom and Foreign Countries and British Possessions respectively. Table 5 shows, for the year 1908, the way in which imports from each country were made up by consignments from various countries, and the consignments from each country by imports from various countries. Some reference is made below to the results arising from the change of method, but it may here be stated briefly that the effect of substituting countries from which goods were consigned for countries from which goods were imported is to transfer about £1,692,000 of the imports which were credited in Volumes I and II. to British Possessions to the account of Foreign Countries, whilst the corresponding change in the case of exports involves the transfer in the opposite direction of about £1,000,000 of United Kingdom Produce, and about £72,000 of re-exported goods.

Tables 6 and 7 give detailed particulars of the imports of each article for the years 1907 and 1908 according to the Country or Possession from which they were consigned. Table 6 relates to free goods, and Table 7 to goods subject to duty.

Table 10 gives, for each Foreign Country and British Possession, a summary statement of the imports of the different descriptions of merchandise as shown in Volume II. of the annual Statement of Trade, together with particulars as to the quantity and value of the consignments from each Country and Possession. Corresponding information respecting shipments from this country is only included when the consignments to a Country or Possession differ from the exports thereto. Where the exports are in all respects identical with the consignments a reference is made to the pages of Volume II. on which the particulars will be found. As already explained, the consignments from each Country and Possession are further subdivided so as to show the portion which was re-exported to other destinations and the portion which was retained in the United Kingdom. The information in this Table is further summarised in Tables 8 and 9 which relate to the total value of the trade between the United Kingdom and each market.

Information as to the bullion and specie imported from and consigned from, and exported to and consigned to, each Foreign Country and British Possession is given in the remaining Tables of the Volume (Tables 11 and 12).

General Results of New Method of Classifying Imports and Exports.

Imports.—In the case of goods imported from European countries the Statistics given in Volumes I. and II. of the Annual Statement of Trade showed only the country in which the port was situated from which the goods were shipped to the United Kingdom. In consequence, practically all the goods consigned from Switzerland, and a large proportion of those consigned from Italy and Austria-Hungary, are credited in Volumes I. and II. of the Annual Statement to France, Belgium, Netherlands, and Germany. On the other hand, as regards Germany, a large proportion of German goods reaches the United Kingdom viâ Belgium and Netherlands. As a result the quantity of goods consigned from Germany is on balance greater, whilst the quantity consigned from France, Belgium, and Netherlands is considerably less, than the quantity imported from those countries. The "consignments" from Italy and Austria-Hungary are also greater than the "imports," as shown in previous years. These are the principal changes so far as the above-named European countries are concerned, though taking European countries as a whole, the "consignments" are less than the "imports" owing to the latter including a certain proportion, though not a large proportion, of goods emanating from extra-European sources, but reaching this country viâ the European Continent.

These facts are illustrated in the following Statement:—

	Value of Merchandise.
	Imported from each Country in 1908.	Consigned from each Country in 1908.
Netherlands	36,348,327	16,613,136
Belgium	27,151,508	16,241,919
France	48,064,499	41,892,729
Germany	38,030,642	54,959,859
Switzerland	—	7,914,231
Italy	3,440,466	6,241,446
Austria-Hungary	1,301,752	7,758,478
Other European Countries	87,359,254	88,420,431
Total European Countries	241,696,448	240,042,229

Thus, as practically no merchandise consigned to this country from Europe comes viâ extra-European ports, it appears that out of about £242,000,000 received from European ports in 1908 £1,700,000 was consigned to this country from countries outside Europe. Of this latter amount the greater part is accounted for by (a) consignments from Mexico and from Central and Southern America imported viâ German, French and Belgian ports, and by (b) consignments from Dutch, Portuguese and French colonies imported through the respective mother countries.

Outside Europe, the principal fact of importance is the large proportion of consignments from Cuba, Mexico, and to a less extent the Central and South American countries, which come viâ ports in other countries, both as already stated viâ European ports, and also largely, and in the case of Cuba almost entirely, viâ United States ports. In the case of the United States the consignments were less than the imports by about £260,000 in 1908, whereas in 1907 the consignments exceeded the imports by about £700,000.

In considering the figures with regard to "Consignments" and "Imports" from the United States and from Canada, it must be borne in mind that the figures already given in Volumes I. and II. of the Annual Statement for Imports from Canada and the United States are not based solely on the ports of departure of the goods, but represent to some extent corrected figures. (See Introduction to Volume I.) In consequence the figures given in Table 5 do not exactly indicate the value of the consignments from the United States, which are imported viâ Canadian ports and vice versa. Taking the figures as they stand, however, it appears that in 1908 of the consignments from Canada, goods to the value of nearly £2,350,000 were "imported" from the United States, whilst of the consignments from the United States, goods to the value of £4,000,000 were "imported" from Canada.

The value of the merchandise consigned from Bolivia amounted to £737,300, from Rhodesia £90,700, from the Transvaal £7,100, and from the Orange River Colony "nil." Of the consignments from Bolivia, the greater part were shipped viâ Chile, increasing the Imports from that country by about 10 per cent. The other amounts are too small to have seriously affected the figures with regard to the countries through which the merchandise passed on its way to this country. On the other hand a considerable quantity of gold consigned from the Transvaal reaches this country viâ Cape and Natal ports. The total "consignment" of gold bullion and coin from the Transvaal in 1908 amounted in value to £29,428,409, an amount included in Volume I. of the Annual Statement in the sum of £31,813,764, the value of gold coin and bullion "imported" from the Cape of Good Hope and Natal. A large part of the gold coin consigned to the United Kingdom from Egypt was imported into this country from Germany. The consignments from Egypt exceeded the imports from that country by £2,500,000.

In the great majority of cases other than those alluded to the value of the "consignments" from particular countries is not widely different from the value of the "imports" from those countries, though exact identity is rare.

As between Foreign Countries as a whole and British Possessions as a whole the difference between the "consignment" and the "import" figures is nearly entirely accounted for by the excess of merchandise classed as imported from Canada over the amount consigned from that colony. Whereas in 1904 the "consignments" from British Possessions exceeded the "imports" by £767,336, in 1905, 1906, 1907 and 1908 the excess of "imports" over "consignments" was £1,216,829, £2,250,907, £2,431,512 and £1,692,263 respectively.

Exports.—The changes on the export side are, as already stated, only those involved in the inclusion in the Tables of certain Foreign Countries and British Possessions which have no sea-board (viz.: Switzerland, Afghanistan, Bolivia, the Transvaal, Rhodesia and the Orange River Colony), with the result that the exports to the countries of transit containing the ports to which the goods destined for these newly-included countries were shipped have been reduced by a corresponding amount. The changes involved are as follows:—

(a.) Exports to Switzerland.—The value of the exports to Switzerland in 1908 was £2,820,930 of which £2,314,378 was United Kingdom produce, and £506,552 re-exports of Foreign and Colonial Merchandise. Nearly the whole of this is shipped viâ Belgian ports, with the result that the exports of United Kingdom Produce to Belgium are reduced by the new arrangements by £2,102,993 and the re-exports of Foreign and Colonial Merchandise by £217,740. The amount shipped viâ ports in other countries appears in the following Statement:—

Exports to Switzerland in 1908.

Viâ Ports in	Produce of the United Kingdom.	Foreign and Colonial Produce.
Belgium	2,102,993	217,740
Germany	2,104	192
Netherlands	53,450	63,138
France	155,767	225,468
Italy	64	14
	2,314,378	506,552

(b.) Exports to Afghanistan.—The value of the exports to Afghanistan in 1908 was £11,056. The whole of this was United Kingdom Produce and was shipped viâ ports in British India. The exports of United Kingdom Produce to British India (Bombay Presidency) are thus reduced by the amount stated.

(c.) Exports to Bolivia.—The value of the exports to Bolivia in 1908 was £184,691, of which £177,598 was United Kingdom Produce and £7,093 re-exports of Foreign and Colonial Merchandise. The reduction in the exports to Germany, Belgium, France, and to various South American countries, consequent on the crediting of these amounts to Bolivia instead of to the countries containing the ports of discharge, was as follows:—

Exports to Bolivia in 1908.

Viâ Ports in	Produce of the United Kingdom.	Foreign and Colonial Produce.

(d) Exports to Transvaal, Orange River Colony, and Rhodesia.

The value of the exports to these Colonies in 1908 was as follows:—

——	Produce of the United Kingdom.	Foreign and Colonial Produce.
Exports to Transvaal - - - -	3,100,032	300,412
„ to Orange River Colony - -	371,684	29,318
to Rhodesia - - - -	448,668	39,272
	3,920,384	369,002

These exports were credited in Volumes I. and II. of the "Annual Statement" to the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, and Portuguese East Africa to the following extent:—

Exports to Transvaal, Orange River Colony, and Rhodesia.

Viâ Ports in	Produce of the United Kingdom.	Foreign and Colonial Produce.
Cape of Good Hope - - - - -	2,003,452	204,824
Natal - - - - - - - -	894,994	92,637
Portuguese East Africa - - - -	1,021,938	71,541
	3,920,384	369,002

As will be seen from the above analysis, the difference between the value of merchandise "consigned" to British Possessions and the value "exported" to British Possessions arises from the fact that a certain quantity of merchandise is sent to Rhodesia, Orange River Colony, and the Transvaal viâ Delagoa Bay, and has accordingly been previously attributed to Portuguese East Africa, and that a certain quantity of merchandise is sent to Afghanistan viâ Bombay, and has accordingly been attributed in previous Returns to British India. Thus the "consignments" of United Kingdom Produce to British Possessions as a whole exceed the "exports" by £1,010,882, and the "consignments" of Foreign and Colonial Produce exceed the "exports" by £71,541.

Consignments from Various Sources Retained in the United Kingdom.

It is not proposed to give here any detailed account of the results now available with regard to consignments from various sources retained in the United Kingdom.

It may, however, be of interest to give the results as regards British Possessions as a whole and Foreign Countries as a whole in 1908 :—

	Value of Merchandise consigned to the United Kingdom in 1908.
	Total Value.	Value of the Consignments retained in the United Kingdom.

Total - -	592,953,487	513,329,790*

In the preceding remarks, reference has been confined to the features of the statistics for the year 1908, and to certain general comparisons with corresponding figures for 1907 on particular points. As a period of five years has now been completed for which the figures of consignments are available, some comparisons of the results for that entire period may prove of interest.

The most important point that arises in considering figures of imports, classed according to the countries from which they were shipped and consigned respectively, is the considerable volume of the trade which reaches this country by indirect routes. Subject to the reservations already indicated in the fourth paragraph of p. v, the table which forms Table 5 of this volume and of the three preceding supplementary volumes affords material for the examination of this point for the four latest years; the first supplementary volume of the series did not supply this information for the year 1904.

The general results of this examination are as follows :—

. The indirect Consignments have thus averaged about 9½ per cent of the total, and it is in the reassignment to countries of consignment, instead of to countries of shipment, of this 9½ per cent. that the superiority of the system now adopted, over that which it is to replace, consists. Apart from the fact that certain countries having no seaboard, and some others of little importance which seldom had direct trade relations with the United Kingdom, now appear in the list of countries from which consignments are received, the figures relating to a number of important countries are very extensively modified, as was shewn in the discussion of the figures for 1908 above. Thus, in the years 1905 to 1908, about 56 per cent. of the imports from the Netherlands, nearly 44 per cent. of those from Belgium, and about 14 per cent. of those from France, were goods consigned from other countries. Of the total of indirect consignments from all countries to the United Kingdom, about 70 per cent. were imported from these three countries. On the other hand, in the same period, over 80 per cent. of the consignments from Austria-Hungary were sent indirectly, about 45 per cent. of those from Italy, and over 40 per cent. of those from Germany. The indirect consignments from these three countries amounted to about three-fifths of the indirect consignments from all foreign countries. If the consignments from Switzerland be added to the indirect consignments from Austria-Hungary, Italy and Germany, the resulting total has amounted, in each of the last four years, to about £40,000,000, the same total expressing approximately the aggregate of consignments received indirectly from the Netherlands, Belgium and France. In the cases of Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and Austria-Hungary, the effect of shewing the indirect consignments according to the countries from which they are consigned, instead of according to those from which they are shipped to this country, has been to diminish considerably the differences between the values of goods exported from each of those countries to the United Kingdom, as recorded in their official statistics, and the values assigned to imports into the United Kingdom from the same countries. In the case of France, and more markedly in the case of the Netherlands, the record of imports by countries of shipment agrees more closely with the export figures of those countries than does the record of imports by countries of consignment.

The differences between the two records which have been set out in tabular form on page v. above, and in previous supplementary volumes, are, it should be noted, not the differences which have just been under discussion, namely those between direct shipments and direct consignments. In the case of Germany, for example, a considerable quantity of goods from other countries, principally from Austria-Hungary, is consigned viâ the ports of the former country. The examination of Table 5 will afford abundant illustration of this point.

Taking foreign countries as a whole, the proportion of indirect consignments to total consignments to the United Kingdom was somewhat lower in the latter two than in the earlier two years of the period under discussion. In 1905 and 1906 the average proportion of indirect consignments was 12·2 per cent, while in 1907 and 1908 it was 11·3 per cent. With a larger total of imports the aggregate of indirect consignments was smaller in the later than in the earlier two-year period.

A change of this kind is especially noticeable in the case of the countries of Central America and the adjacent states.* In 1905 and 1906 the direct consignments from these countries were only 55 per cent. of the total consignments, while in 1907 and 1908 fully 75 per cent. was directly consigned. While the total consignments had increased by one-tenth, the direct consignments had increased by one-half. Such changes as these will be interesting to follow as the record is extended to cover a longer period. Whether they are temporary fluctuations, or indications of changes in the course of trade, the brevity of the record does not admit of determining.

The table given above shews that, while about one-ninth of the consignments from foreign countries were indirect consignments, the corresponding proportion in the case of British Possessions was less than one-fiftieth. Nearly four-fifths of the indirect consignments from British Possessions consisted of the Canadian consignments which are recorded as Imports from the United States.

For the reasons already given on page v., the actual values of the consignments from the United States and Canada which are shipped to this Country from Ports in Canada and the United States respectively, i.e., of the goods from those Countries which actually reach the United Kingdom by indirect routes, are not fully represented by the indirect consignments in the sense in which that word is used in Table 5 of this Volume.

The differences between the aggregates of imports and of consignments from Foreign Countries and from British Possessions respectively consists almost entirely of food stuffs.

The difference between the figures of consignments and of exports to the British Possessions as a whole consists almost exclusively of the consignments to the interior of South Africa viâ Delagoa Bay, but in 1907 and 1908 a deduction is made of a small amount of merchandise sent to Afghanistan viâ Bombay. In the cases of Natal and the Cape of Good Hope, the differences between export and consignment figures are much larger than for the British Possessions as a whole, as the greater part of the consignments to the British Possessions in the Interior of South Africa pass through these Colonies. Over one half of these is consigned viâ the Cape of Good Hope, but the consignments viâ Natal were decreasing, while those viâ Delagoa Bay were increasing, in the later years covered by the comparison. The distribution of the trade is shown in the following table:—

Total exports to Transvaal, Orange River Colony, and Rhodesia by routes.

Years.	viâ Ports in			Total.
	Cape of Good Hope.	Natal.	Portuguese East Africa.
	£	£	£	£
1904 - - - -	1,598,240	1,055,663	518,917	3,172,833*
1905 - - - -	1,977,144	1,312,213	833,583	4,122,940
1906 - - - -	2,144,349	1,005,097	741,207	3,890,664†
1907 - - - -	2,126,569	936,812	949,642	4,013,023
1908 - - - -	2,208,276	987,631	1,093,479	4,289,386

The following statement gives a summary of the results of distinguishing, for each country, the part of the consignments therefrom which is subsequently re-exported. In some cases the proportion so re-exported is large. Thus in the years 1905–8, more than three-fifths (61 per cent.) of the consignments from Brazil were re-exported, the principal item involved being caoutchouc. A similar proportion (59 per cent.) of the consignments from the Straits Settlements was re-exported, the principal item involved in this case being tin. The wool and feathers received from the Cape of Good Hope, the wool of Australia, and the cotton of the United States and Egypt, afford other examples of large re-exports, though the larger comparative volume of imports of other commodities from these countries makes the re-export of the commodities named bear a smaller proportion to the total imports consigned therefrom than in the extreme cases of Brazil and the Straits Settlements.

If the imports consigned from Foreign Countries be compared with the re-exports of the same goods, and similarly for consignments from British Possessions, there is seen to be a considerable difference between the portions re-exported and retained in the two cases. Of the consignments from Foreign Countries a little over 90 per cent. has been retained, on the average of the five years, while of those from British Possessions the average percentage retained has been not quite 72. Of the re-exports, over 53 per cent. have been consignments from Foreign Countries, nearly 47 per cent. consignments from British Possessions. The proportion of the latter to the former has also, apparently, tended upwards during the five years considered. If compared by countries of destination, over 88 per cent. of the re-exports were consigned to countries outside the British Empire, and less than 12 per cent. to countries within the Empire.

On the basis of the total imports into the United Kingdom, the British Empire consigned 22·6 per cent. of the total; of the retained imports, 18·8 per cent. were consigned from within the Empire. The exports of produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom to other parts of the British Empire fell short in value of the consignments from the rest of the Empire to the United Kingdom by about one-twelfth, but exceeded the value of the part of those consignments retained for consumption in this country by nearly 28 per cent.

* Including small amounts as to which the countries from which they were consigned were not ascertained.
† In these figures account has been taken of the amounts referred to in the preceding note.

Some of the principal reasons for the greater proportion re-exported of the consignments from within the Empire than of the consignments from Foreign Countries have been indicated in the preceding remarks. The large proportion borne, to the total value of consignments from British Possessions, by the value of such commodities as wool, tin, caoutchouc, etc., the raw materials of important industries conducted abroad as well as in this country, accounts for the large re-exports of such consignments. The consignments from Foreign Countries also include important raw materials, which are re-exported in large amounts, but the proportion of these materials to the total is less. The established lines of trade lead to the marketing in this country of much of the raw material produced elsewhere, and particularly of that produced within the British Empire. In spite of the growing tendency to establish direct communications between the sources of raw material and the localities where it is used in industry, the figures contained in the tables of the series of supplementary volumes show that the intermediation of the United Kingdom in the transference of goods from countries of production to countries of consumption is still very important as measured by the value of the goods concerned.

In general, the routes of trade are not quickly changed, so that the broad indications of the figures for the five years do not differ greatly from that of the figures for any one year of the five. The survey of the period has, therefore, been confined, in the main, to features to which little or no attention had been directed in the annual memorandum introductory to the previous volumes of this series.

Beginning with the issue of the Annual Statement of the Trade of the United Kingdom for the year 1909, the system on which the figures have hitherto been presented will be changed. Up to the present the figures in Volumes I. and II. have been those relating to the countries of shipment of Imports, and also for Exports in the case of those countries which have no seaboard. In 1909 and following years, the figures of Volume I. and II. will relate to the countries of consignment for both Imports and Exports. A supplementary volume will continue to be issued, in which particulars will be given on the basis of the figures hitherto stated in the first two volumes. By this means it will be possible to trace the details of the differences resulting from the change of system for a further limited period.
